Prince Fortunatus,- well backed at 8 to 1, heavy drive only managed to win by a short head from Al H. Woods, 7 to 1, another Sullivan good thing, who closed with a gallant rush, after a slow beginning. H. B. Duryea's Ramrod, 9 9to 5 favorite, was third, ten lengths back. The time was 1.53. Three favorites and a second choice rewarded the form players, while the coups with Don Endique and Prince Fortunatus made the day one of disaster for the books.

Seaver, the Massachusetts state title holder, who reached that round on the previous day. In coming through Larned scored a signal victory over Wylie C. Grant after the latter had twice been within a stroke of winning. This result will bring Seaver and young Larned together in the finals, the winner being returned the challenger of Frederick G. Anderson for the New Jersey honors.

The visitors arrived about noon and play started at 2 o'clock.

IN FINAL GOLF MATCH

NEW YORK, September 21.-Archie Reid of St. Andrew's, the old Yale golfer, will meet Jerome Travers in the final round of the big invitation tournament of the Mor-12 3 3 3 ris County Golf Club at Morristown, N. J. today. Reid won his match in the semifinal yesterday afternoon by disposing of Robert Abbott of Princeton. He played sterling golf both morning and afternoon. and won both matches comfortably, returning at par 76 card in the morning and bettering it by one strike in the afternoon. Neither Dwight Partridge, whom he de-feated in the morning, nor Robert Abbott were ever in the match after the first half dozen holes.

For his 75 in the afternoon he secured a 2 at the short tenth hole and 3 twice at the second and the home hole, but his long run of 4s, seven of the outward journey and two coming home, gave him his excellent total.

Jerome Travers had no difficulty in his matches in either round. He did not play at his best, but when he needed to show his strength he always came to time with his strength he always came to time with good form. He disposed of A. D. Sword and L. M. Richmond, and had both matches safely won at the turn.

Richmond, in the morning before meeting Travers, put out Findlay Douglas. He gained a hole on the outward journey and Douglas was never able to get on even Douglas was never able to get on even terms again. He won the home hole, tak-ing the match, 2 up. Abbott disposed of D. H. Barrows easily to reach the semi-finals. Relatives Supposed to Reside Here. Maj. IN THE SEWING ROOM

MRS. NATION REMAINS IN THE DISTRICT WORKHOUSE.

Mrs. Carrie Nation was seated in the sewing department at the workhouse when a Star reporter asked what she had to say of her treatment by Judge Bundy in the Police Court. She was at work upon a striped garment belonging to one of the male prisoners and had about finished giving another prisoner advice about obeying the prison rules when Superintendent Zinkhan asked her to step into the corridor if she desired to see the reporter. "Indeed I do want to see the reporter," declared Mrs. Nation, looking at the latter over her glasses. "I'm awfully glad you have come here this morning, as I know you will enlighten the people about my cause. While Mrs. Nation was telling of her trials and tribulations Judge Bundy called to see her, his visit causing her to remark that his conscience must have troubled him after he sent her to prison.

"You see," she said to the reporter, "the will of the Lord is working; the judge knew he had done wrong and his con-science troubled him so much that he had to come here early this morning." "I have come down purposely to see you this morning," Judge Bundy said, extend-ing his hand and greeting the woman whom he had fined $25 for an alleged disturbance of the peace.

"And," said Mrs. Nation, "I'm glad to see you. I could see yesterday that you were a kind-hearted man." "But," added the judge, "I'm mighty sorry to see you here. I know you are a good woman, and I never felt more sorry n my life than I did yesterday when I had to fine you."

Discusses Her Case.

Mrs. Nation then started upon a discussion of her case, but the judge did not feel inclined to go into the merits of the controversy again. He told her that the testimony was against her and that there was nothing left for him to do but impose a fine. She replied there was nothing left for her to do but go to prison, telling the judge that witnesses in court do not always state the exact facts when they are anxious to convict.

Judge Bundy had called upon the prisoner to see if she would not comply with the law and thus secure release from the work-house, but she could not see her way clear to make such a promise as he exacted of her. She said she would speak at places where she was given permission to speak, and while it was not her desire to disobey the laws of the land she also knew she had a mission to perform and she intended to perform it. "Under the circumstances," she declared,

"I can sign no bond or make promises which I know I cannot keep. Then she asked the judge if he had any influence with Judge Kimball. She wanted Judge Bundy to intercede for a man and woman who are in prison. They will be re-leased in the middle of the winter, she stated, and one of them is anxious to get out and provide a home for the other. Judge Bundy again turned his attention Judge Bundy again turned his attention to the case of the prisoner, saying he wanted to do something for her, but she repeated what she had already told him.

"I would rather be in the workhouse working my way to heaven," she told him, "than to be at home rocking myself to Seeing he could accomplish nothing, Judge Bundy told Mrs. Nation he hoped the good Lord would bless her, and left the prison. "You see," said the crusader confidentially, "his conscience troubled him and he had to come to see me."

Refuses to Pay Fine.

Mrs. Nation is one of the sixteen white and seventy-seven colored women who are serving time in the workhouse in default was in the wrong. There are circumstances under which she might be arrested and under which she might pay her fine, she said, but this case does not present such a condition of affairs.

Referring to her arrest at the post office, she said she was merely there to get out of the rain, and she found it impossible to find a place to stand where tobacco smoke was not blown into her face. The men there, she said, became insulting, one of them telling her she would better go home and live with her husband. and live with her husband. Her husband, she said, died more than four years ago.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

Constable Accused of Firing Revolver at Passing Autoist. Special Correspondence of The Star. BLADENSBURG, September 20, 1907.

The trial of Edward Markward, constable of Chillum district, Prince George county. charged by Hervey G. Machen with assault by firing at his automobile while driving along the Bladensburg turnpike Saturday evening last, took place last evening before Justice Augustus H. Dahler. The hearing attracted one of the largest gatherings ever assembled in the magistrate's court. At the conclusion of the trial the constable was required to give bond in the sum of $200 for his appearance at Upper Marlboro The officer admitted that he discharged his pistol, but claimed that he fired down in the water with the idea of frightening the driver into stopping the machine. He claimed that the machine was being driven by Machen at the rate of one-fourth mile in 30 seconds. Hervey G. Machen, the owner of the machine, who caused the arrest, went upon the stand and took occasion to administer a severe lecture to the of-ficer. He declared that unless officers of Markward's stamp are taught how to handle their pistols and clubs with discretion they would become a distinct men-ace to the safety of the citizens, especially those compelled to use the public highways. Machen testified that he did not recognize NEW YORK, September 21.—Women lawn tennis experts vied with the men in the exciting matches of the New Jersey who, the physician states, ended his life by drowning in the Mississippi river.
